The lights suddenly started moving at what appeared to be a terrific speed straight towards us, the lights got larger and brighter.

The lights reached a point I would estimate to be over Huddersfield town centre when the lights suddenly moved slightly to my left and then back to its original position and then slightly to the right. These movements were very jerky and sudden and the distance moved on each occasion was not very great.

At this point I went out into the garden and observed the lights from a standing position and listened for aircraft noise, but there wasn't any.

The lights then got really bright in the sky and then suddenly the lights disappeared as if they had been switched off, leaving a pencil line of light across the sky, East to West.

From first seeing the lights and its disappearing I observed it for approximately ten minutes in total from different positions and on each occasion I was stationary. I did not use any binoculars or telescope but just used the naked eye.

I do not wear glasses and have excellent eye sight.

I, nor any of my family, had been drinking prior to the sighting. My house is situated on a high hill to the north of Huddersfield town centre with no objects or buildings to block our view over Huddersfield town centre and the hills to the south.

I would estimate the lights appeared in the sky approximately 30 degrees up from our location.

At the time of the sighting the weather was clear and fine,
